“A family-owned vineyard on this famous slope in Morgon supplies the grapes to Duboeuf for the wine. It is structured and dense, full of black plum and berry flavors. Acidity cuts through the tannins, resulting in a wine that will age well.”

“Fresh mineral notes line the wild strawberry, blackberry tea and red plum notes in this concentrated red. Dried herb and floral notes linger into the creamy finish.”

- 90 Pts Wine & Spirits, October 2016

“Super-ripe in its flavors of dimpled cherry skin and black cherry syrup, this has serious tannins that shape the fruit, feeling as if it were cut from black stone. It’s a wine that will age on tannins rather than acidity, needing a few years in the bottle to integrate.”

2014

- 89 Pts. Wine Advocate #219, June 2015

“...The nose is bright and with fine minerality, brisk red cherry and strawberry fruit with a subtle granitic scent underneath. The palate is medium-bodied with a nicely structured opening, linear at the moment and perhaps just requiring a little more weight and flesh on the finish that I am sure will develop in bottle. Therefore, I would advise giving this Cote du Py another 12 months in bottle to get the most from it...”

- 90 Pts. Wine Enthusiast, December 1, 2015

“The long slope of the Côte du Py has produced this structured wine that's firm, dry, tannic and needing to age. It is concentrated in both structure and in rich black-plum fruits. The wine will age well, so don't drink before 2017.”
